The chapel is a 'peculiar' existing outside the control of the Church of England. It was traditionally endowed by two maiden sisters named Hewett in the early 13th century. It is now an independent foundation, held in trust since 1575 by twelve feoffees who are responsible for the preservation and upkeep of the chapel on behalf of the townsfolk of Warminster who actually 'own' it. Saint Lawrence was martyred by the Romans, being roasted to death on a gridiron. His festival is on August 10th and the Patronal festival is held each year on the closest Sunday to this date. The chapel is in the Church of England Parish of St. Denys and on the appointment of a new vicar, the feoffees invite that person to take the services. From time to time other members of the clergy are invited to take services. A service of Holy Communion is held each Wednesday at 10.00am

Situated in the centre of the market town of Warminster the chapel is an oasis of calm in the midst of the traffic and commerce of the town. The chapel is opened every day and many people take the opportunity to pop in and sit quietly in contemplation. The feoffees maintain a security rota and there is CCTV coverage. Inside the chapel there is a Scudamore Organ, built in 1860 by Nelson Hall, an organ maker of the town, to a design by the vicar of Upton Scudamore the Rev John Baron MA. At the West End there are the boards recording the names of the Feoffees since it was donated to the townsfolk right up to the current time.
